FIFTY-SIXTH YEAR NO. 17.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY MARCH 31, 1933.

PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR

JUDGE HORNBECK TAKES CUT IN OWN SALARY

Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck, London, who recently was named presiding judge of the Second District Court of Appeals of Ohio, for a period of two years, has notified the auditor of state and the auditor of his home county of Madison, that in keeping with the spirit of the times and in the interest of economy, he would voluntarily accept a reduction of salary.

Because of the importance of his position, the reduction involved amounts to a substantial sum over a period of time.

Judge Hornbeck has served four years on the court of appeals and prior to that time, served for many years as judge of the common pleas court of Madison county and also was postmaster of London for a number of years.

Records show that the Second Appellate Court is a busy one. Unlike many such courts, its members travel over the district, visiting each one of the eleven counties twice a year. The district includes Franklin county with the state capital, Columbus, Dayton, and Springfield. Greene county is a member in the Second district.

The court decides many important cases originating in the state departments and bureaus and is second in the state in the number of cases disposed of annually.

The other members of the court are Judge A. H. Kunkle, Springfield, and Judge J. D. Barnes, Sidney.

Judge Hornbeck has gained an enviable position in the legal fraternity and in the court circles during his long and efficient period of service.

Beer Bill Passed By Ohio Legislature

The Ohio legislature by almost a unanimous vote has passed the beer bill providing for 3.2 beer in accordance with federal laws. The law now awaits Governor White's signature, which is to be affixed today from reports out of Columbus. The law goes into effect April 7, the day the federal laws is operative.

The legislature wrangled over the bill for many days. In fact the bill was written and rewritten seven times. It carried a tax provision and thus could be passed as an emergency law with no chance of a referendum being asked. The dry leaders seeing there was little opportunity to check the passage of the law offered only feeble opposition on the floor or in committee hearings.

The vote in the Senate, which first passed the bill was 25 to 5 and in the House 95 to 34 on the bill proper. On the emergency clause the vote in the House was 100 to 29, much more than even the votes had expected.

The legislation provides for the appointment of a commission by Governor White to issue the various licenses and have control of the enforcement of the law which legalizes 3.2 beer as non intoxicating. The commission will consist of four Democrats and three Republicans. Political leaders of both parties backed the legislation, all votes taken in each house being on non-partisan lines.

The commission holds powers to make regulations and to license brewers, distributors and retailers in four classifications. Brewers are to pay $1,000 annually plus five cents a barrel for all production in excess of 5,000 barrels. The barrel tax is to go into the state general revenue fund for school purposes.

Distributor's license costs $1,000 annually, plus five cents a barrel on all in excess of 5,000 barrels. Operators of retail stores must pay a license fee of $50 a year; may sell beer only in bottles or more for consumption off the premises, and only in lots of six bottles or more. Hotel, restaurant, club or amusement park operators must pay a license of $100 annually; may serve beer in bottles and glasses at tables only, for consumption on the premises. Prohibits sale of beer or wine to persons less than 16 years old.

Requires all branches of breweries engaged in distribution to obtain distributor's licenses. Imposes a tax of $1.00 a barrel on all beer manufactured or sold in Ohio. Apportions the barrel tax to the State general revenue fund and the license fees to the political subdivisions. Provides for local option in municipalities, townships or a section of either by obtaining the signatures of 35 per cent of the electors casting votes for governor at the preceding State election.

The House witnessed the greatest contest over the bill and for a time it was feared not enough votes could be mustered to write in the emergency measure. Representative W. R. McChesney, Greene County voted against the bill.

NEW CAPITAL BUILDING HAS 400 TELEPHONES

The telephone system in the new state office building in Columbus has a telephone system that is the most modern and complete of any branch exchange in the world. The 400 telephones of all state departments in the building are handled through one switchboard, which replaces 16 switchboards and numerous direct lines which had furnished service at various locations in the city.

The new centralized switchboard has seven positions for operators and the total force consists of ten operators, with the board adequately covered during regular working hours and in the evening.

For several weeks the Ohio Bell Telephone Company made a survey of the various departments to determine the type of information given by calling parties seeking to be connected with the department or person with whom they wish to transact business.

The operators are ready to meet such situations. They have been trained so that they have a general working knowledge of the various departmental functions and the supervisory people in those departments. Any person calling into the building, who is not certain which department is the proper one to handle his business, is questioned by an operator so that she can ascertain just who and what he wants.

THE HIDDEN DOLLAR IS VALUELESS

It probably never occurs to most of us that there is such a thing as valueless money. And it isn't counterfeit either. Millions of honest and legitimate good dollars in this country are now absolutely valueless and useless.

This is the money that drops out of circulation. It is hoarded money. Its owners keep it in safe deposit boxes or in tea-pots or buried in the back yard. Millions have come out of hiding in recent weeks but according to government reports and the return of banks there must yet be much money that has not come to the surface. The federal government in due time will take more drastic steps to bring hoarders to time. State governments are passing laws fixing a penalty, so that we can expect more money to flow into the channels of business and into banks that a greater credit system can be possible.

Money has no intrinsic value—its value is determined by what it can do when it is working. When out of work, it is useless as would be a number of similar sized pieces of tin. It isn't paying taxes or meeting dividends or employing labor or buying supplies. It isn't doing its part in keeping the wheels of enterprise turning.

There has been some grounds for the hoarding of money and not keeping it in banks where it was intended that it should be kept. Because some banks did not follow the old established safe and conservative banking rules, there began to grow a suspicion that all banks were not safe. The drastic rules adopted by the government and close supervision following the banking holiday has proven that most of the banks were sound. There were others that were not solvent yet to meet the new requirements had to seek additional capital. It is safe to say that for some years our financial institutions will be on a sounder basis so that people should have no fear for safety of their savings.

There are two distinct ways of putting money back into circulation. One is depositing it in commercial or savings accounts in banks, or purchasing government or other high-grade securities. The other is by buying needed articles or effecting necessary repairs. The latter way provides employment. More jobs and less charity is needed. It is going to take billions of dollars in banking credit to start the wheels of industry moving. When factories are at work employees can then purchase the necessities of life. This will bring higher prices for farm products and soon enable the farmer to get into the purchasing market.

All this cannot come to the American people over night. It cannot be accomplished strictly by legislation. There are economic laws that have to be reckoned with. Man cannot change them but he can hinder their operation. There are good indications that with the necessary bank credit established and confidence once more restored we can find ourselves looking into a more promising future.

THE HOLDING COMPANY MUST GIVE WAY

One of the important steps the new national federal administration faces is how to handle or what to do with the new fangled method of business control by holding companies, the product of the master mind that held to the theory that the bigger a corporation was the better it would be. The holding corporation was the product of Wall Street. It enabled Wall Street bankers to control the utility industry. It branched out and included wheat products. It has had much to do with controlling the canning industry and other food products. The worst of all has been the banking institutions, such as wrecked two large banks in Detroit. The chain banking system is a by-product of the holding company idea. Ohio has one; Kentucky had one that brought financial ruin to many towns and cities.

The idea of the holding company is to take an extra profit at the expense of smaller stockholders. As for banks it gives an opportunity of evading the double liability protection for stockholders, the holding company holding just a fraction more than fifty percent of the stock in banks. Congress should make such companies unlawful and abolish what companies that now exist as a holding company. Years ago the courts forced the Standard Company to break up its corporate set-up in individual units. The holding company must go sooner or later.

WHY SO MUCH REGULATION FOR THE NEW BEER?

There is every indication that the new 3.2 so-called non-intoxicating beer is to have more regulation than did the old time beer prior to the advent of the Volstead act. If this beer is not intoxicating why should either wets or dries worry about the return of the saloon? Why designate only certain lines of business to handle it? Why deny the sale of it on Sunday? Why no sale on election days? Why deny minors the opportunity to buy it legally like soda water?

One of the leading arguments for 3.2 beer is that federal and state governments need the revenue. With economic conditions such as they are the revenue feature has probably built up more support for any sort of a beer bill than anything else. Everyone seems to have an individual opinion of the new move for returning beer. It is almost an admitted fact that most of the more populous states will be ready to serve beer on April 7th. From the wet standpoint if this beer is not intoxicating we see no real need for all this regulation. From the dry standpoint there should be no sleep lost, the more open saloons with an intoxicating beer or wine, the sooner the situation will right itself. The wets know this is the time to force the issue and get what they want. With people thinking more about saving their homes and farms, millions of unemployed seeking jobs, the business men waiting frantically for better times, there is little wonder that 3.2 beer now has the right of way. The dries must also keep in mind that political leaders are now on the other side of the fence. Prohibition really made no headway until the political parties endorsed it. Under our party system of government the dries will be forced first to win over political leaders before there is another change.

Most men's idea of a snap is the other fellow's job.

The fellow who gets ahead is generally the fellow who helps others get ahead.

Good government is the product of a well informed citizenship.

The depression is a lot of people learning to do without things their fathers and mothers never had.

An intelligent person does not know all—he knows where he must look to be enlightened on the particular subject.

A few years ago it was two cars in every garage and two chickens in every pot. Now we can add two lawful kegs in every cellar.

There are over three million people on all the public payrolls, of whom almost a million draw their existence from the Federal government, but there are only two million people who pay income taxes, a ratio of a wolf and a half, or half a wolf, according to the way you figure it, for each caribou. — Colonel R. R. McCormick.

While farm conditions show little change, a good sign is that the fundamental supply and demand situation in regard to wheat is steadily improving, thus warranting the opinion that price improvement will come in the future. There have been some farm price setbacks, with cattle and hides holding near an average over a year period.

TALES OF THE CHIEFS

CORNPLANTER

The Seneca boys who played around their village on the Genesee river (New York), noticed that one of their number was much lighter of complexion than the rest. This boy who was so different-looking was called Cornplanter, and the reason for his paler skin was that his father was white.

The father was different to the fate of his half-Seneca son. After he was grown, the young man went to Albany to see his parent, but though the white man treated him well enough, he omitted the gifts which mean so much to the Indian heart, and sent him back no wiser, and certainly no happier, than he had come.

Cornplanter, however, was Indian by inclination, and soon threw all his interests into those of the tribe, becoming a chief. In this capacity he proved to be one of the greatest Seneca leaders, and the British forces owed much to Cornplanter's ability during the Revolutionary war.

In 1779, General Sullivan and his American troops invaded the Seneca country. The Indians were powerless to stay the advancing army, which burned and destroyed as it went, showing the Seneca that the colonies were strong and that they had chosen badly when they united reluctantly though it had been) with the British cause.

"The great fighting chief," as Hewitt calls him, tried to make a stand on the shores of Canadagula lake, and endeavored to rally his men to the fight, hoping to drive off the Americans. As their army advanced, however, many of the Seneca lost heart. They began a retreat, melting away from the spot where they feared to die. Cornplanter was furious at their cowardice. Placing himself before them, he harangued them in the effort to revive their enthusiasm, but to no avail. Red Jacket, the leader of the retreating Indians, could not be dissuaded, and branding him as a coward, Cornplanter was forced to see him go, taking many Senecas with him.

The chief was party to many of the treaties between the Senecas and the United States, in which their lands were conveyed to the white men. At first, the Indians allowed these concessions of land as being necessary, and placed no blame on Cornplanter for his part in the treaties. As their chief, he visited Philadelphia in the effort to tell General Washington the story of his people and the grievances of which they complained. Six years later, the chief was given a tract of 640 acres by Pennsylvania, in recognition of his valuable services to the white people. He owned more than this amount of land, adding the grant, forming a line holding on the banks of the Allegheny river.

Thus far, he had flourished, but he had not always been happy. The treaties which he had signed, ceding Seneca land to the white men, finally caused the Indians to hate him. In fact, he was in danger of murder at times from the incensed Senecas, although they had willingly chosen him to represent them, though knowing that he was friendly to the whites. His favorite son, on whom Cornplanter had lavished every advantage (perhaps trying to make up for his father's neglect of himself) became a drunkard. His pension, of $250 a year, was uncertain. The blame of his people weighed on him, whether he knew it to be justified or not. He was a very old and very lonely man.

Then, in his age, the Great Spirit of the Indians came to him and spoke. White men had given him a beautiful sword and belt, relics, medals, and other gifts. The Spirit told him that he was wrong to preserve these or to associate further with their givers. He had prospered through the white men, it is true, but he had also suffered through them. Had they never come into his life, he would have avoided all the troubles which beset him—troubles which were clearly attributable to the white men and their ways.

The old chief broke the sword and burned the belt. All his life he had been associated with the white people, and had gained and lost from the contact. He was an Indian—that half of his blood which was white had given, long ago, in white men's service. He looked back on almost a century of life, and wondered what it had gained him. And so, on February 19, 1836, Cornplanter went to find the answer to his questions, at the summons of the Great Spirit.

Brazilian Captain—Sergeant, tomorrow there will be an eclipse of the sun—something which does not happen every day. Give orders to form the men for parade at 5:30 a. m. They can observe this rare phenomenon and I shall give the necessary explanations.

Sergeant (to second ditto)—By order of the captain, in the morning at half-past five there will begin an eclipse of the sun with demonstrations by the captain. If it rains and nothing can be seen out of doors, the eclipse will take place within the barracks.—Boston Transcript.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT

Estate of G. W. Creswell, Deceased.
 J. A. Finney has been appointed and qualified as Administrator of the estate of G. W. Creswell, late of Greene County, Ohio, deceased.

Dated this 27th day of January 1933
 S. C. WRIGHT,
 Probate Judge of said County.

DRESS PRINTS USE ANCIENT PATTERNS

Dress Fashion constantly borrows from the past along with all the rest of the world. Now it's the smartest of the new spring fashions which stimulate in the most modern of weaves the patterns dear to the hearts of our feminine ancestors several generations ago. There's the herringbone linen which looks like wool, to name just one of the many spring fashions which hark back to the days of crinolines and hoops for inspiration in design.

Particularly popular with women these days are the new prints, many of which employ the small figuring so popular in our grandmothers' day. These vie for favor with the chatty prints seen frequently in variously colored plaids combined with white.

Egyptian Motif Is Seen

In Latest Paris Styles
 Fashions with an Egyptian leaning have suddenly appeared in Paris. For some reason—unaccountable to the stylists—many of the newest spring modes appearing in the French capital seem to have come from some Egyptian origin. Oriental colors and designs are noticeable in the color schemes—bright green, blue and turquoise used against backgrounds of yellowish gold.

One of the most frequently seen indications of the Egyptian in the color schemes—bright green, blue and turquoise used against backgrounds of yellowish gold.

Sports Costume

Boldly striped black and white tweed makes a stunning sport suit. The skirt is divided, but you never would guess it because it is all cut in gorges and flares out in just the right places to make it alluring. There is a little close fitting jacket that goes with it.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS
 The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer life.

TWO EXTRA GUM-DIPPED CORD PLYS UNDER THE TREAD

This is a patented construction, and the two extra Gum-Dipped cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and tests show 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for the performance on high speed cars.

NON-SKID TREAD

Tough, live rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Scientifically designed non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.

Tulle and Flower Bridal Ensembles

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MAKE way for the Easter bride—she comes! Pretty as a picture, too, for never has a springtime bride had more lovely array at her disposal than that which present-day style creators are placing at her command.

Now that the wedding preparations are on you can feel romance in the very air. You note it in the billowy masses of tulle which are floating in frothy whiteness across the horizon of busy workrooms.

One problem confronting the forthcoming bride is as to whether her nuptial veil shall be daintily modern or quaintly picturesque, or perhaps just discreetly conventional. The trend this spring leans in the direction of novelty. For a real thrill we refer Miss Bride-to-be, who has gone utterly modern in her ideas, to the picture herewith. The unusualness of this headpiece stamps it as a decidedly up-to-the-moment creation. These brim or visor styles of tulle are very new and chic.

The little wreath of orange blossoms about the crown—adorable! The tiny muffs which the bride carries which are also fashioned of orange blossoms, what more enchanting in the way of flower adornment could a springtime bride long for! Wondering about the material for the gown? The answer is white dull crepe with peau d'ange lace for the bodice and the sleeves.

Of course, no self-esteeming bridesmaid is going to allow the bride to totally eclipse her. At least, the rite of honor smiling at the bride in the picture, has seen to it that she share

We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. C. N. Stuckey, who has been in Orlando, Florida, most of the winter. He says it has been hot and dry in that section. W. C. T. U. NOTES

Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

The National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment urges that every state concentrate on the organization of every precinct, to the end that the voters in their precincts may become intelligent on the repeal situation and realize what the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will mean to their homes and their families. Definite work to hold your own precinct as a means of controlling your state's action on ratification of the repeal resolution is the imperative need of the hour. Do not delay. Remember the words of Bishop Hughes:

"If haste makes waste, this is a time when slowness is suicide."

If the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, it is the opinion of Louis McHenry Howe, personal secretary to President Roosevelt, that the doing away with prohibition will result in a rise in crime. Mr. Howe expressed this belief in a radio interview broadcast just before the inauguration over a nation-wide network. Declaring that it was absurd to think that organized criminal bands would, if deprived of their liquor profits, take to "selling lead pencils on the street corners," he said it was obvious that at the present time many were engaged in blackmail, kidnapping and counterfeiting. He believed that President Roosevelt would make a statement concerning the suppression of crime, when it came time to do so.

Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas favors the retention of the Eighteenth Amendment, according to a press statement, in which he is reported to have said: "I am personally opposed to any movement to legalize the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquor, and shall exert my best efforts to maintain rigid law enforcement, including existing state and national prohibitory laws."

Provision for an election next November to decide whether the state will repeal or retain state constitutional prohibition has been passed by the Ohio legislature.

If the government is in such dire need of revenue as to license evil in order to get it, we had better license gambling, banditry, robbery, racketeering, etc., for a part of the booty, than license liquor selling. The robber may take people's money, but leaves them with their honor, their health and the ability to earn more money. But the liquor seller takes their money and gives them less than nothing—a thing that will further rob them of their health, their reason, their honor and the ability to earn money.—Prohibition Defender.

If legalized beer is to help raise the revenue, give relief to the unemployed and bring back prosperity, why does it not do so in the beer-drinking countries?

Great Britain has lawful beer, and dire poverty stalks in its streets.

Germany has lawful beer, and unemployment threatens the life of Germany.

Economic salvation is not to be found in beer, or else these countries would be in better shape than the United States, and the fact is they are worse off than America.

To the ratification of the Repeal Amendment, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is opposed. We stand back of the Eighteenth Amendment and know that in our support of the same we are backed by great masses of Christian people and by organized and unorganized women who realize the consequences of a restored liquor traffic, all of whom by resolution and practice are supporters of the Eighteenth Amendment. Its submission does not mean the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed. It must be ratified and the campaign against it is now transferred to the states. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will fight every step of the way.

From reports the Xenia City schools may be forced to cut the regular term short about three weeks owing to a financial shortage. Cedarville will get to operate her schools the full nine months according to present indications.

Mr. S. T. Baker, the surviving Civil War veteran in this community, was given a surprise some days ago in honor of his 87th birthday. Mr. Baker enjoys good health for one of his age and is able to drive about daily. At one time in his earlier years he held the reputation of being one of the best auctioneers in the county. His many friends wish him many more birthdays.

There will be a meeting of poultrymen in the Assembly Room, Court House, Monday evening, at 8 P. M. to consider an Egg Marketing organization in the county. J. E. Garrison of Troy, in charge of the work in that county, will give a demonstration. D. W. Ferneau, Columbus, will also speak.

SMART THREE-PIECE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This stunning three-piece traveling suit is in green and white. The threatened bag is new. The hat is related to the costume in that it is created of novelty straw which is woven in green and white check to correspond with the motif of the tweed. Two distinct fashion trends are here emphasized, that of the color-matched hat which may, as in this instance, be of a different medium or as is often the case the hat is of the same tweed or weaves as the suit. The other style point accentuated is the fact of the jacket and skirt being supplemented with a cape which may be worn or not at one's own pleasure, which makes it extremely practical.

Cottons and Linens to

Have Big Summer Vogue
Activities, point to another big summer for cottons and linens. At present both cottons and linens that are being shown are puzzling fashion people, because they so often look like woollens.

The natural line-color suits worn with darker houses are a smart expression of this mode.

Other details that are registering are the narrower daytime skirts and waistlines that are slightly lowered. Necklines are still showing high tendencies, but an open, square cut is used in a couple of daytime dresses and jackets.

Veils Are Becoming More

Flippant Than Formerly

Veils are more flippant than ever. They are found on tailored or formal hats, accented for color, pattern, or manner of wearing. They may be any length from eye to shoulder. The most piquant novelty is the Talbot style, the veil tying under the chin.

Narrow belting ribbon in tailored effects of two and three colors is remarkable in recent collections of millinery importations.

IMPROVED SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson
(By REV. P. B. FLETCHER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago)
Lesson for April 2
JESUS MINISTERING TO JEWS AND GENTILES
(World Friendship Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:1-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: these also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd, John 10:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Little Neighbors.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Foreign Woman Meeting Jesus.
ADVANCED AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Attitude to Other Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Ministry of Jesus to All Races.

1. Jesus Dealing With the Pharisees and Scribes (vv. 1-23). The Pharisees and scribes zealously sought to preserve Judaism from the encroachments of heathenism. In this effort they built up a wall of traditions which in turn obscured the very law of God. As they gathered together unto Christ, he taught them: 1. The emphasis of formal worship (vv. 1-7). The tendency of the human heart is to depart from the life and rest in the form which was calculated to express the life. Christ declared that worship which centered in forms was as empty and meaningless as lip service while the heart is away from God. This kind of service he calls "hypocrisy," and it is common today.

2. It made the Word of God of none effect (vv. 8-13). A case in point was the consecration of earthly goods to escape the responsibilities of caring for one's parents. This made it possible for a man to be living in luxury while his parents were in the poorhouse.

3. The real source of defilement (vv. 14-23). Sin is moral and spiritual. A man is defiled by that which springs out of his service and not that which enters his mouth. The deliberate choice of the will is the source of defilement (v. 20).

11. Jesus Healing the Daughter of the Syrophenician Woman (vv. 24-30). In sharp contrast with the apostasy of Israel and their rejection of the Savior, we see in the Syrophenician woman the foregleam of the offer of the Savior to the Gentiles.

1. The mother's awful distress. Her daughter was grievously vexed with the devil. The daughter was the one afflicted, but the mother carried the burden. Dearest, this little woman had heard of the fame of Jesus, his power to heal, and many times longed for him to come that way that her daughter might be healed. She now came straightway to him.

2. Her fervent appeal for help (vv. 25, 26). She humbly fell at Jesus' feet and besought him to cast the devil out.

3. Her faith rewarded (vv. 27-30). a. Jesus' apparent refusal (v. 27). According to Matthew he answered her not a word. The reason for his silence was that she appealed to him on the wrong basis, addressing him as the Son of David (Matt. 15:22). An Israelite only had a right to seek his blessing as the Son of David. He was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. Jesus said, "Let the children first be filled; for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and cast it unto the dogs."

b. The woman's quick response (v. 28). As soon as she perceived the real difficulty she addressed him as Lord and cried for help (Matt. 15:25-27). Only an Israelite could approach him as the Son of David, but all could come to him and own him as Lord. She willingly took her place as a Gentile, showing her willingness to receive but a crumbs from the children's table.

c. The glorious issue of her faith (vv. 29, 30). Jesus said, "Go thy way, the devil is gone out of thy daughter."

111. Jesus Healing a Deaf-mute (vv. 31-37). 1. The place (v. 31). This is the region where he had healed the Gadarene demoniac and where the people had requested his withdrawal from this country (Mark 5:20), because of the loss of their swine.

2. The method (vv. 33, 34). a. "He took him aside from the multitude" (v. 33). He did this to avoid publicity.

b. "Put his fingers in his ears, and he spit, and touched his tongue" (v. 34). This was a sign language designed to objectify to the man what Jesus was going to do for him.

c. "He looked up to heaven" (v. 34). To show to the man that his help was from God.

d. A command issued (v. 34). The cure was immediate and complete (v. 35).

3. The effect (vv. 36, 37). Though he charged them to "tell no man," so much the more they a great deal published it.

Larger Comprehension
If the message is to come to men with most effect, there is need for larger comprehension on the part of those who proclaim it, as well as of those who lay plans for its release.—John H. Mott.

The Master Light
In our world of the inner life we gratefully acknowledge Christ as the Master Light of all our seeing, in whose radiant presence our problems are solved, and our faith made plain.
